

with a variety of blanks for justices."<sup>29</sup>

Herbert continued with his book-printing enterprises, publishing for the Reverend George Bower, Episcopal rector in Washington County at that time,<sup>30</sup> An Exposition of the Church Catechism,<sup>31</sup> probably in 1793 or the early part of 1794; and, in January of 1794,<sup>32</sup> Thoughts on the Death of the King of France, by William Fox of London.<sup>33</sup> In February of that year, Herbert took subscriptions for his publication, Impeachment of Mr. La Fayette,<sup>34</sup> which was ready to be delivered to the subscribers on November 11,<sup>35</sup>

This was probably Herbert's last publication, besides his newspaper, for on March 3, 1795, he died, in the forty-first year of his age, leaving his wife, Phebe Herbert, and three children. According to his obituary,<sup>36</sup> Stewart Herbert lived in harmony and friendship with all who knew him, and died regretted by them. He was a foe to none and it is hoped he left no enemies. Open, friendly, humane and generous, his heart was open to the distress of his fellow creatures, and he never wanted the disposition to relieve them.

- 29 Ibid. January 31, 1794.
- 30 Allen, Ethan. Clergy in Maryland of the Protestant Episcopal church. p. 18.
- 31 Appendix A. Imprint bibliography, item 169.
- 32 Washington spy. January 31, 1794.
- 33 Appendix A. Imprint bibliography, item 172.
- 34 Appendix A. Imprint bibliography, item 173.
- 35 Washington spy. November 11, 1794.
- 36 Ibid. March 10, 1795.