

1794

143 Baltimore. New theatre.

The last week of performance. New theatre, near the lower bridge. Seignior Falconi will introduce an automaton, representing an Indian armed with a bow and arrow... To which will be added, a miscellaneous exhibition of all the experiments that experience has taught the performer to be most pleasing and entertaining... a curious farce, called the Imaginary sick man... to conclude with the rope-dancer.
Baltimore. 1794.

Broadside.

Title from advertisement in the February 17, 1794 issue of the Baltimore daily intelligencer, which states, "Hand-bills being put up at the usual places."

Not in Evans.

No copy located.

144 [triple rule] / The Baltimore daily intelligencer. / [rule] / Vol. I. No. 56. Wednesday, January 1, 1794. - Vol. I. No. 311. Wednesday, October 29, 1794.]

[colophon:] Baltimore: - Printed by Yundt and Patton, at their printing-office, in Calvert-street, between Market-street and the / Court-house; where subscriptions (at four dollars per annum) advertisements, articles of intelligence, &c. are thankfully received. // [1794] folio. 49 cm. 1 folded sheet, 3 columns to the page, in each number.

Issued daily, except Sunday.

Continued by the Federal intelligencer and Baltimore daily gazette.

Evans 26605.

MdBE. For other copies see Brigham.

145 The Baltimore daily intelligencer.

New-year's verses, / addressed to the patrons of / the Baltimore daily intelligencer, / by their obedient servants, / the news-carriers. / [rule] / January 1, 1794. / [rule] / [2 columns of verses; each column contains 6 verses of 4 lines] [Baltimore: Printed by Yundt and Patton. 1794]