

471 Baltimore. New Theatre.

Mr. l'Estrange (prompter) & Miss l'Estrange's night. January 21. A comedy (not performed these three years) called The deserted daughter ... end of the play, a Masonic epilogue ... after which a ballet dance, called Auld Robin Gray ... to which will be added, a comedy, called Bon ton; or, High life above stairs ...
Baltimore, 1799.

broadside.

Title from advertisement in the Telegraphe and daily advertiser of January 21, 1799. Paragraph in the Telegraphe of January 23, 1799, states: "Mr. and Miss l'Estrange ... beg leave to apologise for having omitted the dance (mentioned in the bills)."

Not in Evans.

No copy located.

472 Baltimore. Ordinances.

Ordinances / of the / corporation / of the / city of Baltimore, / passed at their second session, held / February 1798. / [double rule] / Baltimore: / Printed by Thomas Dobbin, at the / Telegraphe office, / [rule] / 1799. //

8°. 20 cm.

Pages: [1-3], 4-18, [19, 20 blank], 21-89.

Signatures: [A]⁴, B⁴-H⁴, I², K⁴-L⁴, M³.

Half-title, p. [19]: [ornamental rule] / Ordinances / of the / corporation / of the / city of Baltimore, / passed at their third session, held / February 1799. / [ornamental rule] //

Not in Evans.

MdBE.

473 The Baltimore intelligencer. Vol. III. No. 130. Wednesday, January 2, 1799. [- No. 185? Friday, May 10? 1799]
Baltimore: Published by William Pechin. 1799.

4°.

Issued triweekly.

Last number located is that of January 26, 1799.

"The paper was undoubtedly continued to May, 1799, when it was transferred to Alexander Martin, who began publishing the 'American', May 14, 1799." - Brigham. Evans 35149.

MH.