

NEW ARCHIVAL MATERIALS

New materials from State Agencies were fewer than had been hoped for. The most important special cause for this state of affairs was the restriction on travel which made it impossible to move record volumes except one or two at a time by public conveyance. A steady flow into our vaults of older records also requires regular propaganda visits of the Archivist to the various county seats in order to overcome the reluctance to part with records felt by many local officials. The shortage of gasoline and tires stopped this effort altogether.

Attention should be called to the Admiralty Court Materials. Through the efforts of Judge Emory H. Niles, the Hall of Records now possesses all known extant materials from the early Maryland Court either in original or photographic form.
