

Among the visitors to the Hall of Records who came to do research in the records, to examine the building or to study methods and procedures were the following:

Robert Agard, Librarian, University of Massachusetts Library; William E. Akin, University of Maryland, indexer, Historic Annapolis, Inc.; Paul Alfred Alsberg, Director, State Archives of Israel; Donald C. Anthony, Associate Librarian, Chief of Manuscripts and Archives, New York State Library; Louis Azrael, columnist, the Baltimore News-Post; Reverend Theodore H. Bailey, Vicar, Middleham Chapel, Calvert County; Mrs. Irvin C. Brown, compiler of Marriages and Deaths, 1830-1837, Washington County, Maryland, printed in The Republican Banner; Robert J. Bull, Assistant Professor of Church History, Drew University, biographer of Freeborn Garrettson; Mrs. George E. Burnett, Salisbury, Trustee, Maryland Historical Trust; William L. Calderhead, Professor of History, United States Naval Academy; George H. Callcott, historian of University of Maryland; Jack L. Carr, Planning Director of Annapolis, Maryland; Kenneth L. Carroll, Professor at Southern Methodist University and Quaker historian; Theodore S. Creedman, University of Maryland, indexer, Historic Annapolis, Inc.; L. Eugene Cronin, Director of Natural Resources, Institute of the University of Maryland, and a party of six; Leon deValinger, Jr., Archivist of Delaware; Richard K. Doud, biographer of John Hesselius; William V. Elder III, Curator of the White House, Washington, D. C.; Clinton Ashley Ellefson, University of Maryland, historian of Colonial Courts; Ernest M. Eller, Rear Admiral, USN (Ret.), Office of Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D. C.; Francisco José Fallon, National Archives of Argentina; Joseph Fenstermaker, University of Illinois, student of American banking prior to 1837; Charles E. Fenwick, President, St. Mary's County Historical Society, Leonardtown, Maryland.

Anna Gregersen, University of Maryland, student of Early Agricultural Societies in Maryland, 1800-1860; Len Guttridge, Alexandria, Virginia, historian of the Decatur-Barron Duel; John F. Harvey, Dean, School of Library Science, Drexel Institute; John M. Hemphill II, Professor of History, Southwestern College, Memphis, Tennessee; Catherine A. Herbert, Admissions Office of Trinity College, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Truman E. Hinton, historian of Prince George's County; Harry W. Hill, Admiral, USN (Ret.), Anne Arundel County Director, Civil War Centennial Commission; Oliver Wendell Holmes,