

CHAP. 820. force and effect. Any person violating the foregoing provisions of this section by permitting any one of any species of any of said animals of either gender or of any age to run at large within the limits aforesaid, belonging to him or in his custody or control, for himself or as trustee for others, or as parent or guardian of any infant, shall be subject to a fine of one dollar for each individual of any species of the animals named so permitted to run at large, to be recovered before a justice of the peace, with such process and form of proceedings and for such appeal and prayer for jury trial and other rights as now prevail in this county in cases of misdemeanors not punishable by confinement in the penitentiary, subject however, to the modification as to term of imprisonment provided in section 102 of the Act hereby amended; no hogs shall be raised or kept, penned or unpenned, for any purpose or be slaughtered or brought alive into the limits of La Plata, except in transit through said town, and for that purpose they shall be caged or in such manner confined as not to be able to walk or run over any portion of the streets or other portion of said town. Any person violating this provision or permitting it to be violated in the case of any hog owned by himself or in his custody or control shall be fined one dollar, recoverable as hereinbefore just above provided. If any animal or animals of any kind hereinbefore named, of which the owner shall be unknown or cannot be found, shall be found running at large in said town, the bailiff shall forthwith seize and impound the same, and shall give notice thereof by notice posted at courthouse door, and if the owner shall not, within three days thereafter, appear and pay said bailiff the amount of the fine hereinbefore imposed and twenty-five cents extra for each day after the day in which the said animal shall be taken and impounded, the said bailiff shall sell the same at public sale, and after deducting one-half of the amount due on same, including fine, which he shall retain, shall account for the balance to said commissioners. It shall be the duty of the bailiff, as far as practicable and possible, to enforce this and other provisions of this Act, as well as the ordinances enacted by the Town Commissioners, as provided in section 98 of the Act hereby amended, and any wilful neglect upon his part to enforce either of them when coming to his notice shall be malfeasance in office. This section shall take effect from and after the first day of May, nineteen hundred and two.
