

SEC. 8. And be it enacted, That each ballot cast at any such primary election shall be handed by the voter to one of the judges of the election, folded, so that the contents thereof cannot be seen ; and the judge of election so receiving such ballot shall place the same in a plain white opaque envelope, to be therefor provided, and seal the same and deposit such envelope so sealed in the ballot box, in the presence of the voter and the other judges of election, after a majority of the judges are satisfied that he is qualified to vote at such primary election ; all envelopes so used at any such primary election shall be of uniform size, and shall be furnished in sufficient numbers by the governing body of the party holding such election.

CHAP. 724

Vote to be placed in envelope and deposited in ballot box.

SEC. 9. And be it enacted, That the return judge of such election immediately upon the deposit of any ballot in the ballot box, as herein provided, shall with an indelible pencil make the letter "V" in the appropriate column in said primary election registration book opposite the name of the party casting such ballot, and simultaneously therewith the clerk of such election shall enter the name of the person so voting in a poll book to be provided each of them by the governing body of the party holding such election.

Letter V placed in appropriate column opposite voter's name.

SEC. 10. And be it enacted, That as soon as the polls shall be closed the judges in their several districts, with the aid of the clerks, shall immediately and at the place of polling proceed to canvass the votes cast, and the canvass shall not be adjourned until it shall have been fully completed and the ballot box shall have been sealed, as hereinafter provided.

Vote canvassed.

SEC. 11. And be it enacted, That upon the closing of the polls each of the election clerks shall write his name in the poll books immediately under the name of the last voter recorded therein ; the judge keeping the primary election register shall write in ink, opposite to and against the name of each person entered in the register who is not shown thereby to have voted and in the appropriate column headed "Voted" the word "No," so that the column may be wholly filled up, and the judges shall then compare the primary election register with the poll books as kept by the clerks, and make them agree and ascertain the number of persons, who by said primary election register and poll books are shown to have voted at that polling place on that day ; and when they have made such comparison and ascertained such facts they shall announce the same in a loud voice.

Clerks to write their name under the name of the last voter.
