

and instruct the said supervisors as to the manner in which the said roads shall be repaired, widened and permanently improved, and the order of time in which the work is to be done, and it shall be the duty of the County Commissioners to furnish to said Board of Road Commissioners such books of record and accounts as they may require.

Laborers to be employed.

113. Each of the said road supervisors shall employ laborers, the number so employed to be designated by the road commissioner of his district, to work with said road supervisor on the public roads in his district. He shall keep an accurate account of the exact hour at which each laborer begins his work and the number of hours he is engaged therein each day he is so employed, and he shall be present with said laborers the entire time, directing and assisting them; and at every monthly meeting of said Board of Road Commissioners he shall submit to said board the account herein required to be kept as aforesaid, and make oath, to be administered by one of said board, that the said account is a true statement of the exact number of hours each laborer was engaged in active work on the public roads in his district during the preceding month, and that he was present with said laborers the entire time they were so engaged; and if, for any reason, the said supervisor is compelled to be absent during the time the said laborers are engaged in work on said roads, by sickness or otherwise, he is hereby required, authorized and empowered to select some competent person to act in his stead, who shall receive the same compensation as said supervisor so absenting himself, to be deducted from the said supervisor's salary; and the said supervisor shall state in the monthly statement to be submitted to the Board of Road Commissioners as aforesaid the number of hours he was so absent and the reason therefor, and if he shall fail to keep and produce at said monthly meeting an account as above provided, or if any account so produced shall contain any false statement, or if the said supervisor shall fail to perform all the duties required of him as specified by the preceding section, and therein specifically set forth, to the damage of the public, or the satisfaction of the said Board of Road Commissioners, he shall be at once dismissed from his position by said board. And the accounts herein required to be exhibited by said supervisor shall be kept on file by the Board of Road Commissioners in their office at Prince Frederick.

work.

114. It shall be the duty of the road commissioners to go over and inspect the work done by said supervisors a least once
