

of streets, and for length running the entire distance of the said streets, or parts of streets; in like manner the said Commissioners of Cambridge shall assess on the property abutting on each side of Race street between Muir and Cedar streets the entire cost of paving a strip on each side of said street six feet in width and for length running the entire distance of the street, or part of street, aforesaid; and the said Commissioners of Cambridge shall, in like manner, assess upon the property on each side of Race street between Cedar and Washington streets the entire cost of paving a strip on each side of said street five feet in width, and for length running the entire distance of said part of said street; and in like manner the said Commissioners of Cambridge shall assess upon the property abutting on each side of Gay street between Poplar and Muse streets and upon the property upon each side of Muse street, and upon the property upon each side of Market street between Muse and the bridge across Cambridge Creek, the entire cost of paving a strip on each side of said streets, or parts of streets, six feet in width, and for length running the entire distance of the streets or parts of streets aforesaid, and if any other street, or parts of streets, shall be paved under the provisions of this Act, the said Commissioners of Cambridge shall assess such part or percentage of the cost of the same upon the property abutting upon each side of the street so selected for improvement, as in their judgment shall be fair and equitable, not to exceed, however, one-fourth of the entire cost upon the property abutting on each side of the said streets. All of the aforesaid assessments upon abutting property shall be made and apportioned upon the respective properties according to the front-foot rule of apportionment, and when made shall constitute a tax or lien upon such abutting property, with priority over other liens thereon recorded after the passage of this Act, and said assessments when made and apportioned as aforesaid shall be placed in the hands of the Collector of Taxes for the Town of Cambridge, to be collected by him as other town taxes are collected; provided that before making such assessment, whether before or after the completion of the work, the said Commissioners of Cambridge shall give two weeks' notice to the owners of the said abutting property by advertising in one or more newspapers published in said town of their intention on or after a certain day to be stated in said advertisement, to make such assessment on said property, and warning all such owners to appear before them at a time and place to be mentioned in said advertisement to show cause, if any they have, why they or their property should not be assessed as proposed, and provided, further, that any person interested feeling aggrieved by any assessment made by the Commissioners of Cam-