

Friday, March 10th, REV. W. R. WEDDERSPOON, D.D.,
"The Days o' Auld Lang Syne." Admission, 15 cents.

Friday, April 21st, REV. JOHN FRANKLIN GOUCHEE,
 D.D., LL.D., "Educational Movement in the Far East."
 Admission, 15 cents.

Friday, May 5th, ANNUAL CONCERT BY MUSIC PUPILS.
 Admission, 15 cents.

WILLIAM PICKENS JR. D.D., Dean.

SKETCH OF MORGAN COLLEGE, BALTIMORE.

Morgan College was chartered originally in 1867. Some instruction was given, using Church and Sunday School rooms for five years. In 1872 the school was formally opened at No. 44 West Saratoga Street, Baltimore, under the name of the Centenary Biblical Institute.

The work at first was elementary with Bible training for those preparing for the ministry. In 1880 the school was moved to its present location, corner of Fulton and Edmondson Avenues, and the course of study broadened, especially to include normal instruction for both men and women.

In 1886 the course of study was still further broadened, the faculty increased and the College given its present name, Morgan College, after Rev. Lyttleton F. Morgan, D.D.

In 1886 Princess Anne Academy was opened as a branch school on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, and a little later became the official Eastern Branch of the Maryland Agricultural College, caring for the agricultural and industrial work among the Negroes of Maryland.

In 1892 the Virginia Collegiate and Industrial Institute was established at Lynchburg, Va.

At the present time, December, 1916, the school has entirely outgrown its present quarters, and there is an urgent demand for larger and better facilities, especially some adequate facilities for training rural school teachers.