

CARRINGTON L. DAVIS.

Carrington L. Davis was born at Chattolanee, Green Spring Valley, Baltimore County, Md., August 27, 1879. Having received his early education in the public schools of Baltimore County, he earned his A. B. degrees from Morgan College and Harvard University, and has pursued courses leading to the Degree of Master of Arts at Columbia University. Mr. Davis served, creditably, as Head of the Department of Greek, in Morgan College, from 1904 to 1907, from which position he resigned to accept a teachership of Latin and German in the local High School. Here, his work was of such an efficient character that he was made Head of the Department of Foreign Languages. In 1917, he was made Vice-Principal.

Mr. Davis is interested in all movements for the public good, but, being a thorough student, naturally things of a classical or cultural nature would most appeal to him. He is a member of the Harvard Classical Club, the Classical Association of the United States and Maryland, and President of the local Booklovers Club. He has written several pamphlets, some of which are:

"Transformation in Educational Ideals."

"The Negro in American Literature."

"An Interpretation of Faust for Everyday Life." and

"The Negro and the European War."
