

REV. R. W. S. THOMAS.

R. W. S. Thomas, minister, preacher, educator, church builder and financier, received his education by private instructors, also was trained in the Moravian schools in Antiqua and Basseterre, B. W. I. He studied pharmacy at the Colonial Dispensary and was assistant pharmacist of said institution for several years. He later graduated from Shaw University, N. C., and joined the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was its secretary for four years. He was appointed professor of sciences in Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., afterwards disciplinary teacher of English and acting president of Cookman Institute, Jacksonville, Fla., for four years, and principal of Haven Academy. He has held important charges in the North Carolina and Washington Conferences. He was transferred to the Washington Conference eight years ago. He was District Superintendent of the Cumberland District three years, and is now pastor of the great Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, the largest membership and congregation in the Washington Conference.