

minute book and served on the owner, reputed owner or controlling occupant of the premises where the animal is kept, and to direct such animal to be killed or to be sent out of the town, if not immediately removed on receiving notice of such order, and also to prescribe penalties for keeping such dangerous beasts in the town after such notice. (13) To regulate, restrain or prohibit by ordinance the running at large of horses, bulls, cows, sheep, goats, ducks, geese and chickens on any of the streets, lanes, alleys or thoroughfares of the said town, and to prescribe penalties for violating such ordinance, and to forbid or regulate the keeping of swine in said town, and to provide penalties for violation of such ordinances. (14) To regulate and prescribe by ordinance, as a protection against fire, whether houses built or erected in said town shall be built of wood or other material, and to prescribe in what parts and sections thereof buildings of wood may be erected, and in what part or sections of the same buildings of wood shall not be erected, and to prescribe penalties for violating said ordinance. (15) To require by ordinance that every person or party who wishes or proposes to erect any building in said town to make a written application to the Mayor and Council for a permit to erect the same before beginning work thereon and in such application to set forth the location, character, materials, purposes and uses of said building, and to require every such person before beginning work on the erection of any building in said town to obtain a permit, printed or written, signed by the town clerk, or the order of the Mayor and Council, and entered in the minute book, and to require a reasonable fee for issuing such permit, and to prescribe penalties for erecting or beginning to erect any building without such permit. (16) To provide by ordinance for taking down and removing any building of wood erected in any part or section of town in violation of any ordinance wherein the erection of a building of wood are forbidden. (17) To prevent by ordinance breaches or violations of the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, so as to forbid traffic, barter or sale in all commodities except medicines, milk and ice, and to prohibit unseemly amusements, games, exhibitions and entertainments on that day, and to prescribe penalties for violation of such ordinance. (18) To provide by ordinance for establishing a building line for the erection of buildings on the streets, alleys, lanes and thoroughfares of said town, or by order, in case of particular business. (19) To preserve peace and order with-