

CHAP. 110. any instalment may remain due and unpaid as aforesaid, to be sold by the said president and directors for the best price that can be obtained therefor, for the benefit of the said company, or shall be liable to be sued for the same, and the amount thereof with legal interest thereon shall and may be recovered by the said president and directors from such stockholders, or his or her assignees, in such manner as debts of similar amounts are recoverable.

Receipts.

SEC. 9. And be it enacted, That the president and directors of the said company shall keep fair and just accounts of all moneys received by them, and of the amount of the profits or shares that may be forfeited, and generally of all moneys received by them for the purpose of erecting the said bridge, and also of all money by them expended in the prosecution of the said work, and shall at least once in every year submit such accounts to a general meeting of the stockholders, until the said bridge be completed, and the causeways leading thereto be kept in due repair, and until all the costs, charges, and expenses incurred in and about said bridge and causeways, shall be fully paid and discharged, and the aggregate amount of all such expenses shall be liquidated and ascertained, and if after said bridge and causeways have been completed, it shall be found that more moneys shall remain in the hands of the treasurer than is necessary for the payment of all charges and expenses incurred in and about said bridge and causeways, the surplus shall be returned as part of the dividend due and payable to the stockholders respectively.

Bridge to be securely built
and not to impede the passage of vessels.

SEC. 10. And be it enacted, That the said bridge and causeways shall be built in the most secure and substantial manner, and shall be secured and supported at each end by good and sufficient abutments, and shall not be less than eighteen feet wide, with railing on each side thereof, not less than four feet high, and there shall be a draw in said bridge, so as to afford a convenient passage to vessels up and down the said river, of at least fifty feet wide, with wings or buoys on each side; and the president and directors, for the time being, shall keep a sufficient number of hands at all times ready for the purpose of opening the said draw, in order to admit vessels to pass through without