

thing that they brought with them to the prison; he shall take proper measures for the health and cleanliness of the prison, and see that the convicts pay proper attention to their persons; he shall not permit any kind of gaming, or profane or indecorous language to be used by the convicts or any of the officers; he shall employ his time, in the prison, as much as possible in his office or lodge, overlooking the other officers in the discharge of their duties, and he is expected to be acquainted with the different kinds of business carried on, so as to form a proper estimate of the faithfulness with which the whole work may be done.

CHAP. 320.

Occupation of time

He shall designate the employment of the prisoners, reference being had to their age, sex and health, and the profits of labor; under his direction the assistant warden shall deliver out the materials and receive the manufactures, and he shall cause such accounts to be kept in the work-shops and other departments of labor as will show the amount of material furnished and the quantity of work done by each convict, and the amount to which they may be entitled for overwork, and these accounts shall be closed every week, for the purpose of detecting and punishing any misconduct of the prisoners in the performance of their tasks.

Employment of prisonersWork shop
accounts

He shall inspect the moral conduct of the prisoners, and in person, or by the assistant warden, attend divine service whenever it may be held, at which all the prisoners shall attend, unless prevented by sickness.

Moral conduct

He shall be answerable for the police and discipline of the institution, and shall report monthly to the board upon the conduct of the officers under his direction; and the board shall remove any officer for the slightest offence or omission in the discharge of his duty.

Police and discipline

He must not permit any prisoners to be together at any time, without proper supervision by an officer; no member of his family shall hold any intercourse with the prisoners more than is allowed to strangers; he must preserve his family entirely isolated from the prison, and on no pretext shall he allow or permit a prisoner to leave the prison yard and come into the front building; proper officers must be named to attend to all such duty as is now performed by convicts

Intercourse forbid

Petty officers