

twelve years of active duty. This was culminated with his retirement in 1964 when he received a brevet commission as Brigadier General.

He first served as Superintendent of the Maryland State Police from 1949 to 1951, completing Colonel Ober's unexpired term. He was reappointed to this position in 1959 and completed two successive terms as Superintendent as of June 1, 1967.

Under Colonel Jarman's leadership the growth of the Department of Maryland State Police has been outstanding. Since 1959 the number of police employees has increased from 511 to 908; there has been a substantial upgrading of ranks, combined with the development of improved management procedures and responsibilities; the police retirement program has been made more beneficial for all employees; pay scales of police employees have been improved; and there has been a tremendous increase in all types of police service available to the citizens of Maryland.

Colonel Jarman has been unusually aware of all the problems connected with highway safety, the primary responsibility of the Maryland State Police. He has worked hard and vigorously to promote highway safety, a problem of vital concern to everyone. He has been instrumental in implementing a driver improvement program in Maryland; he has been an outstanding proponet for effective measures to control the driver under the influence of alcohol; he has supported and implemented measures to aid disabled motorists; and he has effectively coordinated many programs designed to provide a greater degree of safety for those using the highways of Maryland.

Probably Colonel Jarman's greatest contribution to the State of Maryland has been the exceptional quality of integrity which he has continuously displayed in his capacity as a public official and his insistence that this quality of integrity be maintained by all members of the Maryland State Police. The high esteem with which Colonel Jarman is held by the officials of this State, the citizens of Maryland, and the members of the Maryland State Police is an excellent indication that his integrity and ability are well recognized and appreciated; and Colonel Jarman is a gentleman of modest demeanor and one of the finest of all outstanding citizens in the State of Maryland. His courtesy, tact, consideration and abilities have won him a secure place in the esteem and affections of the State of Maryland.

The members of the General Assembly of Maryland have been privileged for eight years to have constant and rewarding contacts with Colonel Jarman.
