

any such questionnaire, or who shall wilfully fail to appear for personal interview before such judge or jury commissioner when duly summoned so to do, shall be liable to punishment as for contempt of court. Any person who shall make his personal appearance before such judge or jury commissioner in response to such summons, shall be allowed the same per diem and expenses for his attendance as are allowed by law to duly selected jurors. It shall be the duty of the jury judge or jury commissioner, not less than fifteen days before the commencement of each term of the circuit court, in the presence of such practicing members of the bar of such court shall think proper to attend, notice of the time and place having been first given to such bar through the crier of such court, to proceed to select a list of two hundred ten persons or more if in the discretion of the jury judge a greater number is deemed necessary, from the names of persons answering questions as heretofore provided, who shall be fairly and impartially selected therefrom by the jury judge, or the jury commissioner with special reference to the intelligence, sobriety and integrity of such persons and without the least reference to their political opinions, to be known as the petit jury panel, and a panel similarly selected to consist of the names of ninety-eight persons to be known as the grand jury panel; provided, however, that no person shall be selected and placed upon such panels as a juror who shall not have arrived at the age of twenty-five years or who is over seventy years of age, judges of the orphan's court, members of the general assembly, coroners and constables during their continuance in office. School teachers, physicians, pharmacists and ministers of the Gospel shall, upon request, be exempt from attendance as jurors. The jury judge shall certify that such lists of names have been duly selected in conformity with and according to the spirit and intent of this article, and such lists and certificates shall be filed with the clerk of the circuit court and by him preserved as other proceedings of such court are kept. No property qualification shall be required of any juror drawn as herein provided.

(a) In the selection of a panel to consist of two hundred and ten persons as provided for in the preceding section, and to be known as the petit jury panel, the total of two hundred ten names shall be selected from the seven delegate subdistricts of the county as follows: thirty names from each of such seven delegate subdistricts.

(b) If as provided for in the preceding section, the jury judge deems a greater number than two hundred and ten is necessary for any term of court, the additional jurors shall be chosen from the seven delegate subdistricts, as near as possible, in the same ratio as this section provides for the first two hundred and ten.

In the selection of a panel to consist of ninety-eight persons as provided for in Section 7-72 of this Code and to be known as the grand jury panel, the total of ninety-eight names shall be selected from the seven delegate subdistricts of the county as follows: Fourteen names from each of the seven delegate subdistricts.

When the list of names selected as directed in the preceding sections as the petit jury panel is made and certified as therein provided,
