CHAPTER 289

(House Bill 328)

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Section 92(a) of Article 77 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1969 Replacement Volume, 1970 Supplement), title "Public Education," subtitle "Chapter 6. The Public Schools," to clarify the definition of handicapped children; to redefine standards for the exclusion of children from the public schools; to provide for educational programs for children who have been excluded, and relating generally to compulsory school attendance and children excepted therefrom.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 92(a) of Article 77 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1969 Replacement Volume, 1970 Supplement), title "Public Education," subtitle "Chapter 6. The Public School," is hereby repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, to read as follows:

(a) Who must attend.—Every child between six and sixteen years of age residing in the State shall attend some public school regularly during the entire period of each school year, unless it can be shown that the child is elsewhere receiving regular, thorough instruction during said period in the studies usually taught in said public schools to children of the same age; provided that the superintendent or principal of any school, or persons duly authorized by said superintendent or principal may excuse cases of necessary absence among its enrolled pupils. The provisions of this section shall apply to any child who has a mental, emotional or physical handicap and who under the bylaws, rules and regulations of the State Board of Education is educable and qualified for special instruction as provided for in this article; and provided further, that the provisions of this section shall not apply to a child whose mental, emotional, or physical condition is such as to render [its] his
