

reintroduction of such devices under a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the litigation. In summary, while we believe that the bill may accomplish no more than its intended changes in style, we believe that the likelihood of any substantive change presents a risk so substantial as to call for the veto of this bill.

Very truly yours,
Francis E. Burch
Attorney General

- 1 Although still in the Code of Public Local Laws of Calvert County, §181 is not currently in effect, having been effectively repealed by the enactment of Code, Art. 27, §264B. Clerk v. Chesapeake Beach Park, 251 Md. 655 (1968).
- 2 Either the courts would not construe the statute as reflecting a legislative intention to bring about a revival of Section 181 or, if such an intention were found, would declare Section 181 to be unconstitutional and severable.
