It might be noted that this section is limited to one who "erects, maintains, or uses" a sign in violation of this subtitle. It does not, therefore, literally reach other violations of this subtitle, such as a property owner who, in violation of §§8-728 or 8-741, permits another person to use his land for prohibited purposes. Similarly, it would not appear to reach a person who, in violation of §8-708 of this subtitle, is engaged in the business of outdoor advertising, but has not yet erected any signs; e.g., a business that has begun to advertise its services or to solicit contracts with property owners for the placement of signs on their land. The failure of the present language to cover this situation may well have been but an oversight; if so, the General Assembly should consider revising this section to apply to "any person who violates any provision of this subtitle", language that has become standard in penalty statutes.
