

drafted as part of the definition of "pharmacy" -- are not expressed as substantive prohibitions, they nevertheless are just that, as becomes clear when reading the present definition in conjunction with present Art. 43, §§ 249 and 268(a) (now §§ 12-701 and 12-703 of this subtitle), which prohibit practicing pharmacy without a license and establishing and operating a pharmacy without a pharmacy permit, respectively. Note that under a literal reading, which interpreted Art. 43, § 250(b)(4) as an element of the definition of "pharmacy", the Attorney General has expressed the opinion that the provision is unconstitutionally broad and vague. See 59 Op. Att'y Gen. 543 (1974).
