

187A(j), which formerly appeared as part of the definition of the word "label". However, since this provision clearly was not part of that definition, but rather a rule for interpreting requirements imposed under the former subheading, it is not retained as an element of the definition of "label" in § 4-101 of this title. Instead, it is revised in this section and § 4-205 of this title as an affirmative rule of construction that relates to labeling requirements imposed under this subtitle and Subtitle 2 of this title, respectively.

Subsection (b) of this section is new language derived without substantive change from the second clause of former Article 43, § 196.

The General Assembly may wish to consider repealing subsection (b) of this section, which, for most purposes, merely restates a well-established rule of the law of agency. To the extent that subsection (b) of this section is broader than established agency principles, it may be broader than the General Assembly intended it to be.
