

"Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions" is a designation that is used, in practice, to denote collectively the Johns Hopkins Hospital and 2 schools of the separate corporate entity, the Johns Hopkins University.

In subsection (a)(3)(iii)2. of this section, the phrase "at any time before the Governor makes the appointment" is substituted for the imprecise phrase "three months prior to the date for making appointments". As to these vacancies, there is no set date for appointment. Rather, compliance with a reasonable request of the Governor is the time limitation imposed on the organization. See also subsection (c)(6) of this section.

In subsection (a)(4)(i) of this section, the reference "State Health Planning and Development Agency" is substituted for the obsolete reference to the "statewide comprehensive health planning agency".

Throughout subsection (c) of this section, "voting" is added to clarify that the "nonvoting" members are not subject to the tenure provisions of this subsection.

In subsection (c)(2) of this section, reference to terms of the members serving on July 1, 1982 is substituted for the obsolete reference to the terms of the initial members.

Subsection (c)(5) of this section is revised in standard language used to state a limitation on successive terms. Thus, the word "full" is added to modify the reference to "4-year terms". This addition resolves any ambiguity that a member appointed under subsection (c)(4) of this section to serve the remainder of a vacant term might be limited to that term and then only 1 full term. Under this revision, a member who is appointed to the remainder of the term is eligible for reappointment to 2 additional full terms.

Also, the phrase "may not be reappointed for 4 years after completion of those terms" is substituted for the prohibition "no member shall be appointed to". This revision clarifies that the prohibition addresses a 4-year period and does not prohibit appointment after that period. This substitution is patterned after the limitation on successive terms for members of county advisory councils on alcoholism, in § 8-313 of this article.
