

FURTHER: saith that he had not a boat belonging to the said Schoope neither did he understande to find any the Capt<sup>t</sup> that last had her founed aboard: And th<sup>t</sup> the Compt<sup>t</sup> had her on the same terms: The defendant further said that he it was the Schoope had lost her anchor and believed it was in the service of the ship which last had her And as the defendant was informed the Compt<sup>t</sup> borrowed an anchor or grapplin for her before he meddled with her So that then the Compt<sup>t</sup> sent the sd Schoope as fit and sufficient for his service: And as the defendant was informed loaded her with salt & glass and deeper as the tenth Part and transported the same from Milles river over to Kent Island where laying her ground (as the defendant was informed by some of the men that belonged to her) at high water; when the tide fell from her believed she might be injured: and if any damage happened believe it to be after that Altho the Compt<sup>t</sup> never before this pretended to have sustained any damage the defendant knew of: but that in the ship they brooke of the Schoopes master: And the defendant believed was done when they laid the Schoope on ground the bush whereof cannot discover (the Compt<sup>t</sup> as the defendant hath heard) having threatened the men that were in her that if they said or gave any evidence against him the Compt<sup>t</sup> would pay to his damage he would make them answer for the same And the said defendant further saied that he believed they did carry the Schoope back from Kent Island to Milles river: But as the defendant heard the Compt<sup>t</sup> men left him and would not agree any further with him alledging that the Compt<sup>t</sup> was a very disaffected man: So that the vessel lay some time before the defendant heard any thing of her being there: At length the Compt<sup>t</sup> and defendant met at Williamstadt some discourse was moved about the Schoope between them and the Compt<sup>t</sup> was very pressing to have the defendant to receive her where she then lay: And be at the charge of sending for her home: The-which to do the defendant denied telling the Compt<sup>t</sup> that he was obliged to bring her home: at last the Compt<sup>t</sup> consented thereto - but alledged he could not get bonds Capable: a person sitting by told the Compt<sup>t</sup> if he would well assure him of his wages before hand he would fetch her to the defendant: but they did not agree upon the same for what reason the defendant could not remember: So that the Compt<sup>t</sup> not sending home the sd Schoope to the defendant committted his suit at common law against the Compt<sup>t</sup> but the defendant -
