

Question. Was the gentleman a stranger to you?

Answer. Yes.

Question. Where did you next see him?

Answer. In Col. Woolley's office. He was arrested for piloting the rebels to Towsontown.

Question. Where did this conversation take place?

Answer. In front of the house. It was on the evening the rebels entered Towsontown the second time, after the burning of the bridges on the Philadelphia road last summer.

The examination in chief of this witness was here concluded.

Cross-examination

Question. You had a conversation with this Mr. Griffiths, had you?

Answer. Yes.

Question. You took him to Mr. Grason's house?

Answer. He knew where it was.

Question. Did you not go with him?

Answer. I passed by Mr. Grason's house with him.

Question. You went as far as Mr. Grason's with him did you?

Answer. Yes. Mr. Grason's is immediately on my road home.

Question. Is it on the public road?

Answer. It is on the plank road.

Question. Did you stop at Mr. Grason's house?

Answer. No.

Question. Did you see Mr. Grason there?

Answer. Yes. On the porch.

Question. Mr. Grason asked him to come in, and he declined, did he?

Answer. Yes.

Question. You don't know what passed between them, do you?

Answer. No.

By the Committee.

Question by the Committee. Why were you summoned before Col. Woolly?

Answer. I was summoned to see whether it was the same gentleman, and found he was.

Question by the Committee. What charges had Col. Wolley against him?

Answer. He was charged with piloting the rebels from the Philadelphia road.