

By the Committee.

Question by the Committee. How many rebels did you see that night while you were standing at Ady's porch?

Answer. A whole crowd were there; I don't know how many.

The examination of this witness was here concluded.

ROBERT T. BALDWIN, called as a witness for the Respondent, being duly sworn, testified as follow:

Question. State your name, residence and business?

Answer. My name is Robert T. Baldwin, I reside in Baltimore; I am an oyster packer.

Question. Were you spending the summer of 1864 in Towson town?

Answer. Yes; last summer.

Question. Were you there at the time of the raid into Towson town?

Answer. Yes; it was on the 10th and 11th of July; I think Monday and Sunday; we first heard of their being in the neighborhood on Sunday; and we heard that on Monday they had gone over towards the Philadelphia road; they returned from there on Monday night, if I recollect right.

Question. State if at that time, you called upon Judge Grason to go with you to look for your children?

Answer. On the night that they returned from the Philadelphia road, having General Franklin in pursuit on Monday night, there was some firing in the road and a skirmish took place, creating a good deal of excitement about the Smedley House, where my family was boarding, and I became anxious about my children. I found my two (2) daughters, my son I could not find; I was told that he had been walking with some girls, one of them Judge Grason's daughter, and that probably he had gone to Judge Grason's house. After hearing that I went to Judge Grason's in quest of them. Mrs. Grason first came to the door, I inquired whether the children were there. She said they were not, and supposed that they were at the Smedley House passing the evening. Then the Judge, hearing my voice, came forward and said he had remained quietly at home, as the girls had gone down to the Smedley House. I then said: "Judge, suppose you go with me," and we went down into the road where the cavalry were drawn up. After inquiring and passing along some distance, we at length found the children, and told them we wanted them to go home. I told my son his mother was very anxious about him. The children, as a matter of course, were anxious to stand looking at these people, and it required a little authority, which Judge Grason exercised. He said to his daughter and the other girls: "this is not a proper place for
