

Question. You say when the flag caught there waving of hats, there was no cheering, was there?

Answer. No: there was no cheering of any sort at Ady's hotel.

Question. You say you had no difficulty in hearing all that occurred at Ady's hotel, so that if there had been any cheering you would have heard it?

Answer. Yes,

Question. You are positive about that?

Answer. Yes.

Question. You are equally positive that there was no cheering of any kind?

Answer. Yes.

Question. There was nothing like a cheer for Jeff Davis or the Southern Confederacy, was there?

Answer. Not as far as I recollect.

Question. Where was Mr. Grason?

Answer. On the porch.

Question. Standing or sitting?

Answer. Standing I suppose, I didn't take no notice of the positions of the persons.

Question. Was he in front of the porch?

Answer. He was on the platform porch, leaning against the railing, between the pavement and the porch; the railing goes out to the outer end of the porch; he was on the front side of the porch.

Question. There were no persons between you and the porch—he was leaning on the railing, wasn't he?

Answer. Yes.

Question. There were no persons between him and the crowd about the pole, was there?

Answer. No.

Question. You had a full view of him, had you not?

Answer. Yes.

Question. How was he dressed?

Answer. I could not describe his dress.

Question. You can state whether he was standing or sitting, can you not?

Answer. No: I cannot.

Question. Had he hat or a cap on?

Answer. I could not describe that.

Question. Was he in uniform or in citizens dress?

Answer. I think probably he was in citizens dress at the time—I do not recollect—I think probably he must have been in citizen's dress, for I saw him when he came up the road which leads to Mr. Ady's. I saw him when he came up on the porch.

Question. Will you swear whether he was in uniform or in citizen's dress?