GENERAL REVISOR'S NOTE:

As part of the ongoing revision of the Maryland laws, the Division of Statutory Revision of the Department of Legislative Reference reviewed the laws that regulated electricians before October 1, 1988, with the intention of revising those laws in this article. The Business Occupations Article Review Committee felt that the ambiguities, gaps, and other problems in those laws could not be resolved in a routine, nonsubstantive revision within the mandate of the Division, which is to clarify the existing laws, but not to change their legal effect.

Therefore, a Joint Subcommittee of the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee and the House Economic Matters Committee was appointed to consider the substantive problems in the electricians law. Accordingly, Ch. 648, Acts of 1988, was prepared to address those problems, by repealing the extant laws on electricians and enacting, as part of a new Art. 56A, a title on electricians. For a detailed explanation of the changes made by Ch. 648, Acts of 1988, see the Committee Comments, which the Publisher of the Code reproduced after the appropriate sections -- and, in some instances, subsections -- of former Art. 56A, §§ 2-101 through 2-702.
