

Subsection (d)(1) of this section is new language added to restate the 2 types of examinations that the Board administers, as provided in the various alternative licensing requirements under § 14-305 of this subtitle.

Subsection (d)(2) and (3) of this section is new language derived without substantive change from former Art. 75 1/2, § 14(c) and restated in language comparable to that used throughout this article for similar provisions.

In subsection (b) of this section, the word "periodically" is added for clarity and conformity to the practice of the Board.

Former Art. 75 1/2, § 14(b), which precluded taking the principles and practice of engineering examination until satisfying all other license requirements, is deleted as unnecessary and potentially misleading. Subsection (a)(1) of this section more clearly states the general rule that an individual must meet all the other licensing requirements of this title before taking either the fundamentals of engineering examination or the principles and practice of engineering examination. Section 14-310 of this subtitle provides 2 exceptions with respect to the fundamentals examination. Nothing in this title, however, purports to qualify the general rule as applied to the principles and practice examination, and it would be superfluous to state specifically that the general rule applies to this examination. See the revisor's note to § 14-310 of this subtitle.
