

person is authorized to practice engineering, §§ 1(c) and 2(e)(3) and rephrased in the standard language used throughout this article to express a prohibition against false representation of authority to practice a regulated occupation.

Although the provisions of former Art. 75 1/2, § 2(e)(3) that related to representation and the use of certain terms were part of the definition of "practice of engineering" and not substantive prohibitions, the provisions nevertheless were that. This effect becomes clear when reading the former definition in conjunction with former Art. 75 1/2, § 18(a)(1) -- now § 14-501 of this subtitle -- which prohibited practicing engineering without a license.
