

In subsection (b) of this section, the reference to "disturbance of the public peace" is substituted for the former words "breach of the peace", to conform to Art. 27, § 122 of the Code.

The Labor and Employment Article Review Committee notes, for consideration by the General Assembly, that this section seems to be an unnecessary restatement of common law since, in the State, the crime of conspiracy requires 2 or more persons who seek to accomplish a criminal or unlawful act or use criminal or unlawful means to accomplish some lawful act. See e.g., Quaglione v. State, 15 Md. App. 571, 598 (1972).
