

eighth sentence of § 8(g), as that sentence related to judicial review, the first through fifth sentences of § 15(c), and the first sentence of § 16(b), except for the reference to the Board of Appeals and representatives of the Board of Appeals.

In subsection (a) of this section, the word "final", which modifies "decision of the Board of Appeals", is added to clarify that a person may appeal only a final decision of the Board of Appeals. See Secretary, Maryland Department of Human Resources v. Wilson, 286 Md. 639 (1979); and Celanese Corporation of America v. Bartlett, 200 Md. 397 (1952).

Subsection (a)(2) of this section is revised to allow for representation of the Board of Appeals in any appeal to which it is a party.

Former Art. 95A, allowed for the Board of Appeals to be a party to an appeal brought either by a claimant for benefits or by an employer. However, only the provisions on an appeal by a claimant allowed for representation of the Board of Appeals.

Defined terms: "Benefits" § 8-101
 "Board of Appeals" § 8-101
 "Employing Unit" § 8-101
