The contract must be accompanied by an additional bond for the protection of those who furnish labor and material. All construction contracts must provide, among other things, that the person or corporation entering into the contract with the authority will pay for all materials furnished and services rendered for the performance of the contract, and that any person or corporation furnishing such materials or rendering such services may maintain an action to recover for the same against the obligor in the undertaking as though such person or corporation was named therein, provided the action is brought within one (1) year after the cause of action accrued. Nothing in this section may be construed to limit the power of the authority to construct any project or portion thereof, or any addition, betterment, or extension thereto, direct by the officers, agents, and employees of the authority, or by agreement with the federal and state government, or any agency or department of either. Subject to this section, the authority may (but without intending by this provision to limit any powers of such authority) enter into and carry out such contracts, or establish or comply with such rules and regulations concerning labor, materials and other related matters in connection with any project, or portion thereof as the authority may deem desirable, or as may be requested by any federal agency that may assist in the financing of such project or any part thereof.
