

John Smith's map, Virginia, 1612 [9th state, 1624], Huntingfield Collection, Maryland State Archives (Special Collections, SC 1399-1-101). This is the first published map to outline the Chesapeake Bay with the land that would become Maryland. Its orientation shows north to the right side of the page, rather than at the top of the map. Inset pictures of Native Americans were adapted from paintings made in the late 1580s by John White for the Flemish printer Theodore de Bry. Engravings of White's pictures were included in de Bry's reprinting of Thomas Hariot's A briefe and true report of the new found land of Virginia. (Frankfurt, 1590). John Smith's 1612 map was engraved by William Hole and published in Smith's Generall Historie of Virginia, New England, and the Summer Isles (London, 1624). The map is reproduced on p. 2 of The Maryland State Archives Atlas of Historical Maps of Maryland, 1608-1908, by Edward C. Papenfuse and Joseph M. Coale III (Baltimore & London: The Johns Hopkins University Press, 2003).
