Mr. Morgan—What time of the day was that?

A. In the afternoon.

Mr. Freaner-What is Mr. Lee's character?

A. Mr. Lee's character is simply this, that when he is sober; (and I have never seen him under the influence of liquor more than three times, although he got under the influence of liquor that day about three o'clock,) he is what I call a very nice man, and a man that will take the advantage of nobody.

Q. What is he when he is drunk?

A. When he is drunk, he is like every other man.

Q. What is his character, good or bad?

A. I would say that he is a man that possesses a good character.

Q. Is he dangerous, troublesome or disposed to riot when drunk?

A. He is a man like all other men under the influence of liquor; he is a kind of a man, that, if you let him have his own way, he is a clever man, but if you cross him—

Mr. Freaner—Then he won't be a clever man?

Witness-Then he would resent an insult.

Q. I ask you his character when he is drunk, is he peaceable or fighting?

A. He is a fighting man when he is drunk.

Q, Did you see him at any time of the day with a whistle in his hand?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you hear a whistle blown?

A. I did.

Q. Do you know the object of blowing that whistle?

A. I do not, but I did hear a whistle blown at the polls, that is, I heard whistling; I don't know whether it was a whistle; a man might have whistled with his mouth.

Q. Did you hear any reply to the whistle?

A. I did not,

Q. Did you hear any body say, "its all right?"

A. Not that I recollect.

Q. Would you have been likely to have heard it if such an expression had been made use of?

A. If I had been in hearing I would have heard it.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Lee belonged to any of the clubs?

A. I cannot say.

Q. How many of the members of those two clubs did you see at the seventh ward polls?

A. I cannot tell.

Q. Can't you give an idea of the number?
