Mr. Iglehart submitted the following message, which was read, assented to and sent to the senate:

By the House of Delegates,
March, 30th, 1838.

Gentlemn of the Senate,

The mass of business before this house has prevented us from bestowing as much consideration upon the bills from your honorable body herewith returned, and not passed by us, as their importance seemed to require. We accompany them with this explanation that the unfavorable action may not prejudice these measures in the estimation of subsequent legislatures.

By order,

G. G. Brewer, Clerk.

The clerk of the senate delivered the following message:

By the Senate,
March 30th, 1838.

Gentlemen of the House of Delegates,

The senate observe that in the journal of accounts George G. Brewer and Eli Duvall are allowed one hundred dollars each, as "extra allowance." As this credit seems to be an unusual one, the senate respectfully ask for such information in relation thereto as will enable them to decide upon the propriety of allowing the same. If it be the wish of your honorable body to allow to your chief and assistant clerks the usual extra compensation, the senate will have no objection to concur, provided an equal amount is also allowed the chief and assistant clerks of the senate, which is also usual: And the senate
