

Robert Taylor was about to make a Re-survey of a tract of Land called Dublin (whereon the said Robert now lives) and this deponant was then sworn a Chain bearer upon that Occasion and in running the Lines of the said tract from the first bounder thereof the Courses of the same Land brought them to a Red Oak stump standing between the Plantation of the said Robert and the marsh side where is now marked with eight notches a small white Oak or within Twenty foot of the same from which place the Surveyor set his Compass to run the east Course of the said tract of Land called Dublin into the woods for the Length of the said tract and this deponant further sayeth that Thomas Wood was then present at the said stump and was well satisfied with setting the said east Course from that place and further this deponant says not . . . . . Teague Matthews

Somerset County sp<sup>t</sup>: George Marshall of Somerset County Planter aged thirty six years or thereabouts sworn upon the holy Evangelist of Almighty God deposes as follows. that he this deponant about Fifteen years ago was at the Re-survey of the tract of Land called Dublin by Robert Taylor in running of which the said Taylor Thomas Wood and sundry other persons came to a place between the Plantation where the said Taylor now lives and then did ride and the marsh side where was an Old Stump which seemed by the said Taylor and Wood allowed and deemed as the place where the second Bounder of the said tract Dublin had stood and by their Consent a Red Oak sapling near to the said Stump was marked instead of the second bounder tree so fallen this deponant further sayeth that a few days there after he was Informed by the said Taylor that his Little Boy had cut down the said Sapling which was very near the place where now a white Oak is marked with eight notches and further this deponant sayeth not: . . . . . George <sup>his</sup> Marshall <sub>mark</sub>

Somerset sp<sup>t</sup>: Isaac Boston of Somerset County Planter aged forty five years or thereabouts sworn, on the holy Evangelist of Almighty God deposes as follows that about fifteen years ago when Robert Taylor Re-surveyed a certain tract of Land whereon the said Robert now lives and on which he did then reside called Dublin this deponant was in Company with the said Robert Taylor Thomas Wood, Jeffrey Long, and Thomas Adams and sundry other persons at the place between the said Plantation of the said Robert and the marsh side where they seemed satisfied the second bounder of the said tract of Land Dublin had before that time stood that Thomas Adams or the said Jeffrey Long had divided the Land of the said Thomas Wood a Cross contiguous to the said tract Dublin and by that method of measuring the distance across the said Wood, Land did correspond and agree with the place where the said Company was that there was their said Old Stump near which the said Robert Taylor and Thomas Wood allowed to be marked a small sapling Oak instead of the tree so fallen cut down