A traveling tinker was one day expatiating rather largely in the bar-room of a country tavern, upon his skill in supplying all kind of damaged drinking vessels with handles, warranted to make them far more durable than the original appendages; when he was suddenly nonplussed by a word from an old soldier, who, poking his scarred and noseless physiognomy over the counter, bluntly inquired:—"What would it cost to put a new handle on my mug?"

The Pekin Gazette contains a report from the Chinese Government on the extinction of the rebellion, which ends with the following words:—"It is, therefore, most needful that thanks be offered to the gods for their assistance. Wherefore the Board of Rites is directed to examine into the services rendered by the different gods, and report to us."
