

The "American" of Thursday last said -

We learn that the funeral of Mr. Carroll will take place on Saturday. The procession with his remains will leave the house of Mr. Caton, on Saturday morning, and proceed to the Cathedral, where the customary religious services of the church, of which he was so exemplary a member, will take place. At the conclusion of these, the body will be taken, in procession, to the Ohio rail road depot, to be transported to Ellicott's Mills, and thence to Dougharagen manor, where it will be interred.
