Portrait unveiled

Patricia Hughes, center, Maryland's first lady for the past eight years, stands by her portrait which was unveiled recently at a reception in Government House. Commissioned by the Friends of Government House of which Leonard Crewe Jr., left, is president, the portrait was done by Cedric Egeli, right, of Edgewater. Mrs.

Hughes was recognized by the Friends, a group of private contributors, for her "leadership in reinstalling the seven public rooms of Government House and thereby enhancing the governor's official residence."
