CUMBERLAND — The Maryland House of Delegates passed a resolution Monday to name its new office building in Annapolis the Casper R. Taylor Jr. House Building.

Construction of the building adjacent to the Lowe House Office Building is scheduled to begin this spring.

“Casper Taylor’s leadership and vision made possible an essential and long overdue office building to augment the facilities of the House of Delegates and accommodate the public and the space needs of the standing committees and delegations in the House,” the resolution reads.

Sponsors included Delegates George Edwards and Kevin Kelly.
