

TO SUPERSEDE PROSECUTOR

Lehman Moves To Investigate Alleged Official Corruption.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Governor Herbert H. Lehman announced here he would supersede Brooklyn's Democratic District Attorney, William F. X. Geoghan, with a special prosecutor to head a broad investigation into "alleged official corruption" in that borough.

The Governor, himself a Democrat seeking re-election, acted after studying for several days a petition filed by City Investigation Commissioner William B. Herlands asking that Geoghan be replaced in an inquiry that may reach all law enforcement agencies in the borough.

His intervention followed upon widespread publicity given to a six-months' undercover study of Brooklyn affairs by Herlands' department and the citizens committee on control of crime in New York.

Among insinuations published was a remark attributed to Isidore Jaffe, defendant in a fur racket case, that he had "paid plenty" in an effort to avoid prosecution.

"Charges with regard to law enforcement and alleged official corruption have been made," the Governor said. "Not only against the office of the District Attorney but against officers or employees in other law enforcement agencies in Kings county."

"I cannot pass judgment with regard to the truth of these charges. They should, however, be investigated by a disinterested agency."

Geoghan, twice before has been superseded, once at his own request, and in 1936 when a Brooklyn grand jury brought removal charges against him. Governor Lehman, after a three weeks hearing in Albany, exonerated the District Attorney and rebuked the grand jury for its accusations.

IN THIS KIND OF HORSE RACE IT'S THE STRONGEST THAT WINS

King and Duke, world champion pullers for teams weighing more than 3,000 pounds, get in shape to defend their title. They are owned by Cedardell Farms, Planto, Ill.

By PAUL D. SHOEMAKER (P) Farm Editor

CHICAGO—Horse-pulling contests are becoming as popular with farm people as harness racing was 25 years ago.

Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, says that's because a farmer likes to compare a champion horse with his own.

Twenty-five years ago he could stand by the rail at the county fair, and boast that his own horse was faster than the one that had just won the race. Today he can also stand at the sidelines of a pulling contest and talk about how powerful his own team is, compared with the champs.

This year hundreds of thousands of people cheered horse-pulling contests at county and state fairs from one end of the country to another. Most of the state winners will compete in a national contest to be held in connection with the National Dairy Show at Columbus, Ohio, October 8-15.

A team's pulling ability is measured by the dynamometer. Mount-

BING CROSBY AT MARYLAND

"Sing You Sinners" Opens Three-Day Engagement Here.

As two brothers, one, happy-go-lucky, irresponsible and amiably ne'er-do-well, the other, hard-working, serious and conscientious, Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray turn in what are probably the outstanding performances of their careers in "Sing You Sinners," the uproarious comedy which Paramount presented to local audiences last night at the Maryland Theatre.

The appeal of this picture lies in its good-natured and unsophisticated humor and its natural presentation of everyday characters who might live next door to any of us. Cleverly written by Claude Binyon, it tells the story of the ups and downs of a small town California family, whose principal assets are three sons who can sing, plus an infallible luck at the race tracks!

Two new screen discoveries, both proteges of Producer-Director Wesley Ruggles, who made "I Met Him in Paris" and "True Confession," carry off high honors in "Sing You Sinners." They are young O'Connor, who can act, sing, play an accordion and ride a racehorse with equal skill, and Ellen Drew, who, as MacMurray's fiancée, displays a freshness, beauty and enthusiasm which should make her the No. 1 star find of 1938.

"YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU" SHOWING TODAY, LAST TIMES SATURDAY

"You Can't Take It With You," the screen's greatest triumph of the season, molded from the hilarious Pulitzer Prize play of the same name by Director Frank Capra who made such notable films as "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and "Lost Horizon," is showing today and last times Saturday at Henry's Theatre.

The picture, even brighter, more laughable and human than the stage play that rocked Broadway for two years, stars Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer and many others, all in roles that equal their best.

Shows are continuous from 11:00 a. m. to 11:00 p. m., starting at 11:00 a. m., 1:30, 4:00, 6:30 and 9:00 p. m.

Contract Let For New State Offices

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 14 (P).—Construction of the new state office building here will cost $587,360.

The State Board of Public Works, after bids were opened here, announced awarding of the contract to the Davis Construction Company, Baltimore, who submitted that figure as the low bid received.

Next low bidder was John McShain, Inc., Baltimore, whose bid totaled $591,300.

Lawrence Hall Fowler and Henry Powell Hopkins, Baltimore, associate architects, designed the structure. The new building will house the comptroller's office, the state treasurer's office, the relief tax division and other as yet undesignated state offices. Occupancy is expected sometime next fall, probably in mid-September.

YOUNG NEGRO IS LYNCHED

Suspected in Slaying of Man And Beating Of Woman.

RUSTON, La., Oct. 14.—W. C. Williams, 19-year-old negro suspected in the slaying of R. M. Blair and the beating of his woman companion, was lynched Thursday by a mob of several hundred white men.

The fatal attack on Blair occurred Tuesday night at a parking spot near here and was one of a series of similar crimes.

A passerby who saw some white men whipping a negro out in the country came into town and reported the whipping to Sheriff Bryan Thigpen. The sheriff went to the scene with a deputy and found the mob had lynched Williams.

The negro was hung by a rope to a tree in a pine grove near the home of his mother, "Aunt Ellen" Williams. His body was torn by many bullets. The sheriff recovered the body and had it sent into Ruston in a truck.

The sheriff was told that Williams, who had been hunted by a citizens posse ever since the attack, had retreated to his mother's house and hidden in a loft where some white men found him today.

Both his home and the site of the lynching were located a short distance from the scene where Blair was killed three miles east of Ruston.

Hundreds of men milled about the lynching scene when the sheriff arrived but no arrests were made immediately. The sheriff said some witnesses of the negro's death said Williams admitted killing Blair and also acknowledged making a similar attack on another parked couple, which did not result fatally.

Blair was clubbed to death with a baseball bat and the previous attack was made with a similar weapon.

The entire community has been aroused since Tuesday night in one of the biggest manhunts ever organized in North Louisiana.

Financier Sounds Warning To Nation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Bernard M. Baruch, World War marshal of American industry, urged the nation Thursday to take warning from Europe's recent crisis and look to its military defenses.

The New York financier, adviser to several presidents, asserted after a talk with President Roosevelt that in some respects the defenses were in a "desperate" condition.

"England was forced into a humiliating peace at Munich because she was unprepared," he said. "We certainly don't want to sink into the same position."

Predicting a future contest with Germany, Italy and Japan for trade and power in South America, Baruch contended that "this country ought to be in a position to defend itself and make its voice heard, no matter what the cost."

There is an estimated 670,723, 000,000 tons of coal available for mining in Wyoming.

Glaciers Moving Forward Again

ESTES PARK, Colo. — After shrinking steadily for five years, two Colorado glaciers made a comeback this year that one official calls little short of phenomenal.

If other glaciers in the United States have grown as much as these, Earl A. Trager, chief of the national park, naturalist division, believes it will be a definite indication that the United States is entering a wet cycle.

The two are Tyndall and Andrews, mile-long bodies of ice that snuggle up against the Continental divide in Rocky Mountain national park.

Rangers are measuring the distance from a spot marked X near Tyndall, to the nearest glacial ice.

This is how Tyndall looks today. The dotted line shows how much smaller it was when it reached its smallest size in 1934.

These remnants of the last ice age, 15,000 to 25,000 years ago, had been shrinking steadily since 1932. By last year, Tyndall had slipped back 171 feet. This year it shoved itself out until it had recovered 139 of the lost feet.

Andrews recovered 64 feet this year so that now it is 1* feet larger than it was in 1932.

Reason for this spurt in growth probably is the abnormal amount of rainfall. Colorado just experienced one of the wettest nine months in weather bureau history. Figures on other glaciers won't be available till November.

Scientists agree that if glaciers continue to grow at a rapid rate for a number of years, it will be one indication of a longtime trend toward an ice age. But as yet no one is sure whether the world is receding from the last one.

Measured Every Year.

The United States knows how much its glaciers grow each year because national park rangers measure them.

In 1932 they painted a white "X" on a rock 30 feet, eight inches from Tyndall's "snout," or front, as a marker. Now each year they measure the distance from the X to the nearest portion of the ice. Last year the ice was 201 feet away from the mark; this year only 62 feet four inches.
