more Land; and many others, who are ready and fit to take the Crown calls for Soldiers. But of a bought Servant, after Payment rendered precarious, and he may be taken away from his Master's Recruiting Officer, perhaps when in the midst of Harvest or of some other Hurry of Business, when provided to supply his Place, to the course the Importation of Servants is discouraged, and the People driven to providing themselves with Property in them and their Servants more secure. Thus the Growth by Increase of white Inhabitants in the Province weakened rather (as every Slave may be reckoned) one great and constant Support in a great Measure cut off, and be unable to afford more Merit, than the Slave Colonies.

The Injury complained of to those whose Servants are even to those whose Servants since they must humour them they should be provoked to daily threaten in case they grow idle, neglectful, insolent, occasion many Disorders in the long to. Besides, while this many leave their Masters on to enlist, and not being pursued are discouraged by the Difficulties, they often go quite off so that the Master is injured, to the King.
