The following Extract taken from the Proceedings of the Synod of New York, held at New York, the 30th of August, 1756, By AARON BURDETT, President of the College of New York, who is desired to be agreeable to the following Resolutions, as far as may be seasonable at this Time.

66 IT gives me Pleasure to see a Messenger of Peace would I make about future say, our pu dark Aspect. The Nation we War, is numerous, powerful abounds with Men, and the many as he pleases into the Occasion shows himself superior, and his being an absolute great Advantage in Point of Security.

Our old Friend and Ally, has joined the King of France, we can judge from her Conduct, whatever plausible Pretences she may make to the contrary. No other Power can be put on her joining our side in the present War with us, in the Manner and Power in Europe, under great Advantage to the British Nation; almost all the Powers have been engaged in, since the late Peace, and the House of Austria, Louisburg, and the French, was given up, that the King of France had taken from her Majesty, yet now she has formed a new Alliance; and what may we expect from her other Powers. Spain, Portugal, and the King of Poland, nothing but a favourable Opportunity to attack us. The King of Prussia, by a strange Turn of Policy, has espoused the Interest of France, and the King of the Two Sicilies, readily join their Confederacy. The King of Sardinia, will be obliged to declare, in his own Defence.

add the Colonies, to say no more, are treated by some of our Pretences, in the Situation of our public Affairs, threatening Aspect. And if we do not, the British Colonies in America, will be the darker. All our Schemes have been unsuccessful; our Enemies, small as they are, their Numbers appeared to us with great Advantage. Braddock's mournful Fate, has been attended with a Train of Sequences. 'Tis not easy to be suffered from the barbarous Influence, and by the Assistance of a Paper from the Secretary, Accounts of new Depredations, and ruinous Consequences may be expected. What an Opportunity is put into the Enemy's Hand, to put their Command, where we are, and our Sums. Our Shipping, Artillery, warlike Stores and Provisions, are conveyed there with great Convenience, and fallen into the Hands of the Enemy. All the Ships are lost; and the few Indians that remained in our Friendship, will be those that have remained with the Enemy; for now seems the Time, on they made in a late Treaty, the French act like Men, build Forts, and the English act like Women.

Dark Tidings of late Successes, come in thick Succession. In the Middle of our Lamentation, of Oswego, comes the melancholy News of Mabon's being taken: This is so important, of such Consequences,
