Containing

BIELEFIELD, June 14.

THE Duke of Cumberland is still though he altered the Position of Camp this Morning, by placing between this Place and Herworden.
Royal Highness thought this Although necessary, in order to frustrate the Design the Enemy; who, not judging proper to upon this Side of the Brabant, after having connoitred the Situation of our Camp several made a Motion on their Left, as if they mea-go between us and the Wefer. It is impossi-tell whether Marshal d'Etrees will attack us on The Movements his Army make so near us duces to think he will attack; and the We-Subsistence must at last oblige him to retro-fight. However, we are prepared to receive and the heavy Baggage having been sent away have now nothing left to incumber us in A-We very well know that the Enemy's Army rior to us in Number; but we dare flatter selves that we shall convince them, if they us, that the Valour of our Troops, the Justice our Cause, and the Defence of our Country, in a good Measure, make Amends for our of Numbers.

From the French Camp at Rbede, June 14.
Yesterday Marshal d'Etrees, and the Prin-Soubize, after having reconnoitred the Du-Cumberland's Army, resolved to attack its Flank as soon as possible; and fixed upon the Infantry for the Execution of that Design; but Duke of Cumberland perceiving that they preparing to attack him, decamped Yesterday noon. As soon as we were apprised of Enemy's Departure, Marshal d'Etrees sent a siderable Detachment, under the Command Prince de Beauveau, who marched all Night at Day-break attacked the Post which the En-had left at Bielefeld to cover their Retreat.
Count de Chabot, who commanded this Ar-behaved extremely well, and forced the En-give Way, and they abandoned several Ba-Waggons, and had several of their Men made soners. The Prince de Beauveau did not con-till the Action was almost over; but he writes Bielefeld, that he is advancing upon the En-half-way towards Herworden, which is the they have taken.

Munster, June 14. The French have com-Blows with the Hanoverians, and the latter been obliged to retire in Disorder beyond the fer. We have not yet an exact Account of Affair. What follows is collected from some ters dated from the Neighbourhood of the F-Battle.

The 13th, in the Evening, Colonel F-with his Corps, and some Detachments of Codiers, attacked Bielefeld. At the Beginning found but little Resistance; but the Prussian the left Wing of the Duke of Cumberland's threw a Reinforcement into it, who made a Defence. At break of Day that left Wing sisting of Prussians, Hessians, and Brunswiwas attacked, defeated, and driven out of field, after a vigorous Resistance. The Wing, consisting of Hanoverians, ran away the same Time. Immediately after the the French seized upon Bielefeld, and pitch their Tents on the Spot from whence had driven the Allies. As yet we cannot write Thing certain about the Loss on both Sides only know that the French took ten Pieces of non, and some Ammunition Waggons; and said they have not lost any Officer of Note on the Side of the Vanquished, we reckon the Dead, divers Officers of Rank, particularly the Generals Einsiedel, and Junckheim.

On the 15th, the French made themselves sters of Herworden; and plundered that Town cause the Inhabitants had been so imprudent
