MARY

Contai

LONDON, June

ON Monday Morning, about Florence Hensy, M. D. v. from Newgate to the Bar of King's Bench, in Westminster, to take his Trial upon an indictment by the Crown for High Treason, before Chief Justice Mansfield, and Judge Foster, and Wilmot: The Council for the Prisoner were the Attorney and Solicitor General, Richard Lloyd, Mr. Norton, Mr. Gould, and Mr. Serjeant Pool. The Prisoner were Mr. Moreton, and Mr. Howard.

From one of his Letters it appeared, that the Doctor solicited Employment from a Gentleman at Leyden, who is promoted to the French Nation, and that he offered not only from Interest, but Inclination, to take the Welfare of that Country.

It appeared, in the Course of the Year after the Declaration of War, that he became a Pensioner to France, and received 100 Guineas per Annum, to give the best Intelligence he could of the State of this Kingdom.

A Difference afterwards arose about which he represented as too small, and he was in his Favour, he said he belonged to the Club in the Strand (from which he could not be expelled) at which they always dine at Dinner; and in January, 1757, Bargain was made, that the Doctor should receive Twenty-five Guineas per Month, on his sending a Letter of Intelligence, and to forfeit a Guinea for every Month he received no more than one monthly Intelligence; they gave for Reason, that his Intelligence was not so good as that of the New Club.

The Plan for carrying on this Intelligence was the following: The Doctor wrote Letters with Ink, and between each Letter was put a Spoonful of Lemon Juice. This was done under three or four different Coverings, different Persons in the Secret, and when they came to the Principal for who they were designed. He had a Brother who was Chaplain and Secretary to the Ambassador at the Hague, from whom he got at that Court gained a Knowledge of the Affairs relating to England; and learnt from a Brother a Physician in London, who was Occasion of the Doctor's being in France. Twenty-nine of his Letters being received, the French first Account of Admiral Boscawen's sailing to North-America, and of the late Admiral's sailing to the West Indies, relating thereto, and from that Time, the Doctor's Intelligence was so minute as to give an Account of the Launching of a Man of War: He also gave an Account of all the Difficulties relating to the Expedition in 1757, and assured them that he would be most proper.

The Trial began at Half an Hour in the Morning, and ended at Half Eight in the Evening; when the Jury returned about Half an Hour, brought in a Verdict, that the Prisoner were guilty of High Treason, and that they should be hanged, drawn, and quartered. And this Afternoon, at Three o'clock, the Prisoner were brought to the Bar, where he received Sentence of Death.
