MA R
From the UNIVERSAL
Some remarkable Passages of the
the celebrated Dr. B

IT was the daily Practice of a famous Physician Dr. BOERHAAVE, who lived a whole Life, as soon as he was sick, which was generally for an Hour to private meditation on some Part of the Bible, which he told his Friends, when they were sick, that it was possible for him to go through that it was Thy which gave him the Business of the Day. commended as the best Rule he had, he said, could tend more to the Body, than the Tranquillity that he knew nothing which could hurt his Fellow-Creatures, amidst the Supremacy of the Prince. This Remark of the Doctor, for a benevolent Manner of Greatness of Soul, can never be Source than a Consciousness of and Assistance. This was from his own Illness in 1722, which without Horror, and by which Lectures as well as his Practice. He was for five Months by the Gout, where he lay up, daring to attempt the least Motion. Effort renewed his Torments, yet he was at length not without a Share of Sense. Here his Stand, nothing could be attended to, which could be proposed with Success. But having (in the fixthness) obtained some Remission, he tried whether the Juice of Fun Secocory, taken thrice a Day (viz. above half a Pint each Day) would be of any Relief, and by a Method he was wonderfully successful of BOERHAAVE's was Reasonings, like that of which but on a religious Composition of a Resignation to the Will of God. Of his Sagacity and the wisdom with which he often discovered the first Sight of a Patient, such as they themselves by no Symptom such wonderful Accounts have scarcely been credited, tho' attested by so far from a presumptuous Confidence, or from being puffed up, he was condescending to all, and gentle in his Profession; as he used the Life of a Patient (if trifled with) would be one Day required of a Physician. And he always his best Patients, for God, say master. The Activity of his Mind, his Eyes. He was always chearful of promoting every valuable Endeavour, and the Excellency of the Christian frequently the Subject of it; for proper Occasions, the Divine Assistance of the Scriptures; and they only could give Peace of Mind, sacred Peace which passeth all Understanding, none can conceive it, but he who can have it, but by Divine Condescension never regarded Calumny, nor Dr. BOERHAAVE himself had his thought it necessary to confute the Sparks, said he, which if you go out of themselves. — The f
