Prince Ferdinand's Head Quarters at Saxe-Hausen, July 21.

WE have received the following authentic Relation of the Action near Epsdorff of the 16th Instant, between the Troops, under the Command of the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, and those of the Enemy under Major-General de Glaubenitz.

Upon Advice that a Detachment of the Enemy, consisting of six Battalions, and the Regiment of Berchini, under the Command of Major-General de Glaubenitz, was advancing towards Ziegenhain, and was actually encamped at Walberg; his Serene Highness the Hereditary Prince, was detached from Saxe-Hausen the 15th at Night, for Fritztal, towards which Place six Battalions of the Army had already filed off. He marched early the next Morning to Zwesten, where General Luckner with his Regiment of Hussars, as also Elliott's Regiment of Light Dragoons (that were just arrived) joined him. They continued their march, and arrived that Evening at Treysa; but M. de Glaubenitz had already marched from Walberg and encamped at Epsdorff. Our Troops being fatigued, passed the Night at Treysa, and marched the 16th to Speckwinkel, where Major Fridricks was posted with his Chasseurs, and to which Place Colonel Freytag had advanced with one of his Brigades. Our Infantry did not arrive till eleven in the Morning. The Hereditary Prince himself went forward and reconnoitred the Enemy's Position, and found their Camp placed at the opening of the Mountains, with their left extending to a Wood before Epsdorff, with the Village of Erzdorff before their Right; he took with him five Battalions, placed the Foot Chasseurs, and a Brigade of Chasseurs on Horseback at the Head of an advanced Guard, and made a Detour of near two Leagues across the Woods, Mountains, and the Village of Wolfkuter, in order to gain the left Flank of the Enemy, who thinking themselves very secure, were surprized in their Camp, and had only Time to place two Battalions upon their Flank; but these, after the first Attack made upon them by the Chasseurs, were routed by the second Regiment of Hessian Guards, the Colonel of which, M. Naurodt, was wounded at the first Discharge. Four Pieces of Cannon played from the Wood upon the Camp, and five Battalions immediately drew out, and wheeling about pushed the Enemy, who had scarce formed themselves behind their Camp. While this passed, General Luckner, whom the Prince had left in a Bottom before Speewinkel with the Cavalry, and a Battalion of Bahr (Hanoverian) got up the Heights upon the first firing, and attacked the Right of the Enemy; (where M. de Glaubenitz had placed Berchini's Regiment) and received a general Discharge from all the Musketry of those that could get to their Arms, as well as from the Artillery that was ready to play. The Enemy was put to Flight, and passed a Wood which was behind them; the Rear Guard only shewing some Appearance of Resistance. All their Baggage, Artillery, and Tents, were taken. They retired by Langenstein, to which Place Bath's Battalion pursued them. From thence having thrown themselves into another Wood, the same Battalion passed through Langenstein, and posted themselves upon the Stone Bridge that is over the River Ohme.

During this Time, the Cavalry had got up to our Right, and keeping close to the Side of the Enemy, had cut them off from the Road that leads to Amnebourg; and it being impossible for our Infantry to follow them, the Hereditary Prince took with him Elliott's Regiment of Light Dragoons, got together some Hussars, and passed in Pursuit of them in the Wood, which they had reached on the other Side of the Ohme; and finding them again on their march in the Plain, in their Way to Niederkleyn, he charged and broke through them four or five different Times; at last separated 500 Men from the Body, surrounded them, and obliged them to lay down their Arms. Not satisfied with this, he marched against the Remainder of the Enemy's Infantry, which had thrown itself into Neiderkleyn, and had fixed themselves near a Wood, surrounded them, and summoned them to surrender, which was accordingly done. Berchini's Regiment was likewise either entirely taken, or cut to Pieces by Luckner's Hussars.

Among the Prisoners of the greatest Note, are Major-General Glaubenitz himself, and the Prince of Anhalt, who is a Brigadier; Count Helffenberg and Count Mutschinski were killed by the same Cannon Ball. On our Side, the brave Colonel Freytag was dangerously wounded; M. Derenthal, Prince Ferdinand's Aid-de-Camp, received a Shot in his Thigh; M. Walmsden, Major of Brigade, had his Horse killed under him, and M. Normand, Major-General Bahr's Aid-de-Camp, had his Head taken off by the last Cannon Shot the Enemy fired. Our Losses, upon the whole, not been very considerable. Our Trophies are nine Pieces of Cannon (almost all of which we owe to the Intrepidity of Elliott's Regiment, which, for its first Appearance in the Field, has done Wonders) five Pieces of Artillery, and a Haubitzer. Major-General Bahr, and M. de Bischenau, had the Honour to command the Infantry under the Prince's Orders, which shewed throughout the whole as much Courage as Good will, to march on and engage, though harassed and almost exhausted by the fatigues of their march.

The following is the Number killed, wounded, and missing, from the Regiments under the Command of the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, at the aforesaid Action, viz.

Table with columns: Killed, Woundd, Missing. Officers 2, Serjeants 4, Private Men 79, Horses 120. List of Prisoners taken from the Enemy: Berchini's Hussars, Ditto, Infantry, Prince of Anhalt's, Royal Baviere.

Copy of a Letter from the Marquis of Granby to the Earl of Holderness.

My Lord, IT is with the greatest Satisfaction, that I have the Honour of acquainting your Lordship of the Success of the Hereditary Prince, Yesterday Morning. General Sporken's Corps marched from the Camp at Kalle to Liebenau, about Four in the Afternoon of the 29th; the Hereditary Prince followed, the same Evening, with a Body of Troops, among which were the two English Battalions of Grenadiers, the two of Highlanders, and four Squadrons of Dragoons, Cope's and Conway's. The Army was under Arms all Day on the 30th; and, about Eleven at Night, marched off in six Columns to
