and from Boston to New-York, and Philadelphia, by Express, which we communicate to our Readers with the utmost Pleasure.

from the LONDON GAZETTE Extraordinary. TUESDAY, November 13, 1760. WHITEHALL, November 12, 1760. Wednesday Night.

LATE this Evening a Messenger arrived at the Earl of Holderness's Office, at Whitehall, with the following Letter from the Honourable Major General YORKE, his Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary at the Hague.

H A G U E, November 10, 1760. Monday Morning, Six o'Clock.

My Lord, By a Messenger this Moment arrived from Magdebourg, we have the great, glorious, and fortunate News, that it had pleased the Divine Providence to give his Prussian Majesty a complete Victory over the whole Austrian Army under M. Daun on the 3d Instant, near Torgau.

The King of Prussia sent this Account to Magdebourg; but as the Night was come on, his Majesty wrote Word, that he could not send the Particulars. The Messenger who brought the Account, said, that Marshal Daun had been obliged to retreat the Elbe, which must have had the most important Consequences in such a Season. We are informed by the same Messenger, that the Russians were marching into Poland, and that General Saldohn, having failed in his Attempt upon Cosel, had been obliged to retire into Upper Silesia.

I dispatch this by Bullock the Messenger, who accompanies the Prussian Courier, on board a flying Boat, and as the Weather is fine, and the Wind fair, I make no Doubt but they will arrive speedily in England.

I have the Honour to congratulate your Lordship most sincerely upon this happy and providential Event, which cannot but have the greatest Consequences. Signed, JOSEPH YORKE.

[Thus far the London Gazette.] FROM OTHER PAPERS. LONDON, November 13.

The Battle between the King of Prussia and M. Daun, we hear, began at 7 in the Morning, with skirmishes between the advanced Posts on both Sides, about 9 the Action became General, and the Austrians having some Advantage of the Ground, the Prussians could not, for a considerable time gain the Ascendant: But at length the Austrians left Wing giving Way a little, the King improved his Advantage there so rapidly, that the Austrians were entirely broken, and then the Right and Centre were forced to quit the Field in Disorder.

Nov. 15. It is said that Count Daun's Retreat was so precipitate, that, tho' he had thrown 3 Bridges over the Elbe, near 4000 of his Troops were drowned; that almost all his Cannon, Coaches, Tents, and Baggage are taken. The Battle lasted 7 Hours. The Number slain on both Sides, is said to be upwards of 20,000.

The Park and Tower Guns were fired by Order of his Majesty, being the first Instance of the Guns being fired for the Success of his Prussian Majesty.

Nov. 18. By a Gentleman arrived in the Luffing Packet Boat, there is an Account, that a Week ago they had Advice at Brussels, that the King of Prussia had entirely defeated Count Daun's Army.

By a Ship from Hamburg in 7 Days, we have Confirmation of the great Action of the King of Prussia, wherein 20,000 Austrians were killed, 10,000 taken Prisoners, with 110 Pieces of Cannon, and all their Baggage, &c. A most complete Victory!
