M A R

Head of Mr. PITT's Speech the first

HE began with a Defence during his Administration, for resigning the Seal of his Associates who had War, as State Cowards affirmed that all our Adversaries of the World were owing to it; that should be continued and vigorously pursued, talked so grudgingly of 20 Millions (M the Speaker, who had just before spoke War, &c.) when those Millions were to War by a more glorious Peace, were fitted a Counter, than to direct the Measures.

He objected strongly to the recalling so many, and declared that he would protest should stand single in his Opinion. That he should not seek to screen himself by a Resignation, but was ready to Measure he had advised in the Prosecution of the Support of his Majesty's Allies. Parliament would call for all the Papers in Affairs, which had a long Time been withheld; that in or out of Place happy to assist the King and his Administration, when that Administration was for there seemed to be none. That the Liberty from divulging the Secrets of the Council to declare his Conversation with he would do hereafter. That as France renounces an Account of the Negotiation, would, in Defence of their own and to give a true Narrative to the World; for the Truth of his Averment, did Minister himself, that no such Memorials the French Narrative was ever delivered. That he looked upon himself as a prisoner, who'd be replaced in his Office; never would solicit it, and he believed offered him. That he wished to see carried on with Unanimity, and was happy of returning to the House, that might carry to every Court the more a Parliamentary Harmony. It was remarkable that not a single person from his Mouth, and that he defended and modestly, to the Satisfaction of the utter Confusion of others. Mr. G. Answer him, opposed the calling for any past Transactions. But a general soon silenced him.
